

Advanced Currency Markets (ACM) donates school bus to Manzil center for challenged individuals

Press Release

Dubai, 10 October 2007: Nearing the end of the holy month of Ramadan, the month of giving, region-leading currency and commodities trading company Advanced Currency Markets (ACM) Middle East and Asia today donated a school bus to Manzil Center for challenged individuals.

The bus was presented this morning by ACM General Manager Saber Daboussi, who visited the center and distributed Eid gifts to the children.

"I was truly touched by the children's warm welcome and the great effort that Manzil is exerting to help and educate them. I hope that more companies and individuals will direct their attention to small centers with big efforts like Manzil and the many others that are trying to make a difference in the lives of children with special needs."

Commenting on the company's CSR involvement, Head of Marketing for ACM Middle East & Asia Yanal Sulieman commented: "Operating in a highly lucrative sector, we must not forget the real value and rewards of giving back to the community and extending a helping hand to those segments of society and organizations that need, not only our financial assistance, but our attention and compassion."

Headquartered in Geneva, with Dubai as its biggest regional office outside Europe, ACM continues to support charitable causes internationally and in Dubai by participating in fundraising events, charity
